

Critical Incident Questionnaire (CIQ)

Angie M. 2022

These questions can be used at the end of a module of lessons or after the formation time of new halqa coordinators. These questions serve to help the facilitator know how the participants received the training and also allows the participants to reflect on their own learning and experience. Participants do not need to give their names in responding and anonymity is respected as possible given the administration of the CIQ.

These questions could be administered in a number of ways including: orally to the entire group with one person taking notes, orally one on one (with non facilitator) with audio answers recorded, from one participant to another recording response either on paper or audio, or even written answers on a printed page.
